STRENGTHS

- 🗣️ Buyer Discovery
Asked practical questions about budget, financing, timing, and renovation tolerance; instructors valued clear next-step recommendations.
- 🔍 Property Research
Compared listings, sales, condition notes, and neighborhood signals; careful preparation made complex choices easier for review panels.
- 📋 Pipeline Discipline
Recorded contacts, stages, follow-up dates, and actions in CRM exercises; structured habits kept simulated buyers from being overlooked.
- ♥️ Clear Presentations
Explained property assumptions, risks, and renovation needs to a five-member panel; calm delivery earned recognition for presentation quality.
- 🎓 Persistent Learning
Returned to weak assumptions after feedback and improved buyer templates; that response helped secure capstone approval and stronger work.

MY CAREER

● Real Estate Agent Practicum
Student at Austin Real Estate
Practicum (3 Months)

● Residential Property
Acquisition Analyst at University
Real Estate Capstone Project (4 Months)

● Real Estate Research
Assistant at Student Real Estate
Market Research Lab (3 Months)

- Presented buyer recommendations to a five-member panel, explaining assumptions, risks, and renovation considerations clearly.
- Documented showing plans, offer preparation steps, disclosure checkpoints, and follow-up requirements for organized transaction practice.

Residential Property Acquisition Analyst

University Real Estate Capstone Project 📅 January 2026 - May 2026 📍 Austin, TX

Academic acquisition analysis examined residential opportunities for renovation-focused buyers. Produced client-ready research, buyer intake tools, Excel pipeline reporting, property rankings, and strategy presentations under faculty review.

- Evaluated a 60-property dataset to identify distressed homes suited to buyers seeking renovation opportunities.
- Ranked candidate properties using listing prices, comparable sales, repair estimates, days on market, and neighborhood trends.
- Created a buyer intake worksheet linking lifestyle goals, available funds, financing assumptions, and renovation preferences.
- Built an Excel pipeline dashboard tracking lead stage, property status, follow-up date, offer range, and documentation needs.
- Presented a 20-minute property strategy briefing covering evidence, negotiation considerations, risks, and analysis limitations.
- Revised assumptions after peer and faculty feedback, earning capstone approval with clearer buyer communication templates.

Real Estate Research Assistant

Student Real Estate Market Research 📅 September 2025 - December 2025 📍 Austin, TX
Lab

Faculty-supervised research role focused on Austin distressed-home activity, listing data, buyer personas, lead scoring, market snapshots, and reproducible research documentation.

- Collected public listing information for 85 properties across three Austin-area neighborhoods supporting faculty research.
- Standardized condition categories, listing status, sale history, and neighborhood notes in a shared research workbook.
- Mapped buyer personas for first-time purchasers, renovation-focused buyers, and small residential investors from interview summaries.
- Tested a lead-scoring worksheet and documented questions that improved budget, location, and condition qualification consistency.
- Prepared weekly market snapshots connecting inventory movement and pricing patterns with buyer outreach scenarios.
- Maintained citations, version-controlled notes, and presentation materials so classmates could reproduce research findings.

PROJECTS

Austin Distressed Property Buyer Map 📅 2026

Created a research-based buyer map connecting neighborhood inventory, property condition signals, comparable sales, and renovation preferences. Findings supported clearer search conversations and acquisition decisions.

Residential Lead Qualification Dashboard 📅 2026

Built an Excel dashboard for lead stages, buyer priorities, property status, follow-up dates, offer ranges, and documentation needs. Structure encouraged consistent pipeline habits.
