STRENGTHS

- 📊 Commercial modeling
Customer models connected pricing, volume, margin, and contract terms. Commercial partners gained clearer approval decisions.
- ✅ Reporting discipline
Dashboard testing caught source differences early. A short documentation habit made recurring reporting easier for peers.
- 👥 Planning partnership
Budget and forecast inputs became easier to challenge and compare. Managers had a steadier base for scenarios.
- ✅ Close support
Month end variance review brought accounting and Operations into one conversation. Issues moved faster toward resolution.
- ♥️ Insight presentation
Concise findings helped leaders discuss tradeoffs without getting lost in data. That clarity became a trusted contribution.

SUMMARY

FP&A Analyst with four years supporting commercial finance, manufacturing planning, customer profitability, and management reporting across consumer and ingredient businesses. Builds Excel and SAP models connecting pricing, volume, margin, contract terms, and operating assumptions, then turns findings into clear recommendations for finance, Sales, Operations, and Business Development partners. Develops Business Intelligence dashboards, automates recurring reporting, tests outputs, and documents data logic for reliable decision support. Supports month end close, budgeting, forecasting, long range planning, scenario analysis, and contract review. Applies working knowledge of dairy economics, supply and demand trends, competitor activity, and nutrition products. Presents concise financial findings for leadership discussions and project approvals, with a practical focus on accurate reporting, profitable growth, and sound commercial decisions.

EXPERIENCE

FP&A Analyst, Commercial Finance

Alpine Ingredient Solutions 📅 July 2024 - Present 📍 Fort Collins, CO

Owns customer economics, reporting, planning, and decision support for ingredient opportunities and nutrition products. Partners with finance and commercial leaders on pricing, contracts, operating assumptions, and approval materials.

- Built Excel and SAP profitability models for ingredient opportunities, clarifying pricing, margin, and contract economics.
- Connected BI dashboards with financial and operational data, giving leaders recurring volume and forecast visibility.
- Validated revenue and margin inputs during month end close, resolving variances for management reporting.
- Compiled Sales and Operations assumptions for budgets and long range plans, strengthening scenario model accuracy.
- Analyzed dairy economics, supply signals, demand trends, and competitor activity for nutrition product decisions.
- Presented pricing and contract findings with documented assumptions, supporting commercial approvals and leadership discussions.

Financial Analyst, Manufacturing Finance

Front Range Consumer Foods 📅 September 2022 - June 2024 📍 Loveland, CO

Supported forecasting, budgeting, close analysis, customer economics, and reporting for a multi product manufacturing portfolio. Translated operational inputs into practical financial views for managers, account teams, accounting, and Operations.

- Maintained Excel forecasts combining shipments, pricing, costs, and customer data across manufacturing products.
- Consolidated annual budget submissions, reconciled operating inputs, and prepared clear variance explanations for finance review.
- Developed Power BI sales and margin reports, testing source totals and documenting refresh procedures.
- Analyzed revenue, manufacturing costs, and gross margin during close, resolving discrepancies with accounting and Operations.
- Evaluated customer terms through contribution margin and sensitivity analysis, clarifying contract economics for account teams.
- Prepared scenario presentations that helped managers compare options and prioritize follow up analysis.
